

Global Issues 6, 19, and Southern Exposure Chp. 1
Asia Group

1. In Global Issues #19, what is the different between hard and soft power?
2. What are two foundations of sticky power in the US and what are two reasons why sticky power is important?
3. In Global Issues #6, what is the predicted population for 2050, and what is predicted will happen to the world's population after it reaches that point?
4. In Southern Exposure, what does the author say about using the term "third world" and why isn't it the best way to describe under developed countries?
5. The author mentions several common characteristics among developing nations. What are some of these characteristics?
6. How do rich nations have an advantage over poor nations when it comes to political and economic relations?
7. How does the author define development in the first chapter?
(there are multiple definitions)
8. According to the author, what are the types of approaches to explain different processes of economic and social changes?
9. What do neoclassical arguments focus on and why are they so confining?
10. What is globalization and how does it help terrorists?
11. What are two ways the nation-state is "under attack"?
12. What is the debt crisis and what is one way the World Bank is helping these countries?
13. What are some examples of Environmental Degradation?
14. What are some of the problems which occur as a result of overpopulation in urban areas?
15. How do developing countries acquire artillery?
16. The last section of the chapter describes several cases of impoverished individuals in various developing countries. In what ways are these people different from the poor in developed countries? Also, many of these people have grown up in poverty and are still impoverished as adults. What can they do to break the cycle.